

WHAT DO YOU BRING TO THE TABLE?

FARM OWNERSHIP

Poster made by: Kiritika Rana

WHAT IS FARM OWNERSHIP?

A farm ownership is a person who has legal rights to open, run, crop, harvest, and sell crops from a farm. A person with farm ownership does a little bit of everything. As they are an employer and have to do some of the farm work as well.

SEASON 2 EPISODE

5

John interviews Chris

WHO SHOULD CONSIDER THIS A CAREER TO PURSUE IN THE FUTURE?

A person who has a passion for agriculture should consider farm ownership as a career. A person is giving to commitment long hour days to work on a farm. A person with entrepreneurial skills will benefit as you will have to make decisions to sell food. As well as, having knowledge on how, when, and where to harvest crops will benefit those who are considering farm ownership as a career.

WHAT DO THEY DO ?

A person with farm ownership harvests the crops using machines like tractors to make the process a bit easier.

An individual with farm ownership also sells their crops to either local or big companies. Though farmers usually sell to local markets or at their own farms.

Individuals like Chris who have farm ownership have to pay their employees as well. As an individual will be unable to run a farm, employees have to be hired.

FUN FACTS

- Women make up 30 percent of today's farmers.
- There are 257,454 millennial farmers
- Each American farmer produces food and fiber for 165 people annually, both in the U.S. and abroad.
- One day's production for a high-producing dairy cow yields 10.5 pounds of cheese.
- An acre of land is about the same size as a football field.